

M'GLORY IS DEFIANT.

Again a Prisoner To-Day at Yorkville Court.

His Irving Place House Raided a Third Time in Four Days.

Determined Efforts by the Police to Suppress the Dive-Keeper.

Billy McGlory was arraigned in Yorkville Court this morning, before Justice McMahon, for the second time within four days, on the charge of maintaining a disorderly house at 1 Irving place. Already there are two charges of a similar character hanging over his head. It is said by his attorneys that there is no bolder, more defiant violator of the law than McGlory, who has been prominently and unenviably before the public than any dive-keeper since the days of Harry Hill. But, like Harry Hill, McGlory is "on the list" to go eventually.

The police have made him a marked man, and the law-abiding citizens of New York will be pleased when they hear that Billy McGlory has been returned to the quarters he occupied years ago on Blackwell's Island for running precisely the same kind of a place in Hester street that he has been doing at Irving place and Fourteenth street.

McGlory's personality is unique. He is, according to his own statement, forty-six years of age, and has a mustache with the frost of premature age.

He fruitlessly tries to smother those outward marks of advancing years by imparting an artificial bluish tint.

McGlory permits his hair to grow quite bushy at the back of his head, thus lending to him a theological aspect. To heighten the ministerial air McGlory habitually wears a black, single-breasted frock coat, buttoned tightly to the collar.

Then he dons an iridescent silk hat and this completes the tout ensemble of the celebrated dive-keeper and law-breaker.

A little after midnight this morning a squad of Capt. Clancy's bluecoats tramped through the doors of the Irving Hotel and took possession of the place.

"Guard the doors and don't let a soul get away," thundered the captain, as he marched up to the ever-sinister dive-keeper and said:

"You'll come with me again, McGlory."

"Certainly, Captain," you came, you saw, and you collared," quoted classically Billy, changing the phrase to suit the exigencies of the occasion.

With this party of six men and three women in a further corner of the ground floor prior the case was very different. Two of the men were terrified. The third was James Connolly, known as "One-eyed Connolly, the prize-fighter," from Boston.

Connolly was escorting a pair of swell "swells" around town last night. They were doing "darkened New York" under his guidance, and he had steered his party into McGlory's. They were treating the women to drinks when Capt. Clancy's net entrapped them.

Their "respectability" was so quickly established at the station-house, however, that they were immediately released. It's said they came from Rhode Island.

The three women were May Smith, Mabel Hudson and Anna Wagner, and they were detained. Clancy's men knew them as "old timers."

Although the swell Rhode Islanders were released by Capt. Clancy, he detained two other Giovanni, of 213 East Thirteenth street, Antonio Berioth, 97 Fourth avenue, and Daniel Davis, 232 East Eighty-ninth street, and Michael O'Neill, of 243 East Eighty-ninth street, and these men, with the trio of women and McGlory himself, anxiously awaited the calling of the cases against them.

O'Neill is said to be a brother of McGlory. He was taken from a bed in one of the upper rooms of the Irving House. They all had a long wait before the cases were reached, and it was 10 o'clock when McGlory was called to court.

Henry Hest, of 115 East Fourteenth street, immediately adjoining the Irving place house where to a complaint charging McGlory with conducting a disorderly house. Hest said he had heard boisterous profane and obscene language in the Irving House last night and further that he knew the place to be a resort for dissipated youth.

"I would like to have the case continued until Tuesday afternoon next, when the other cases depending upon me, I am not now represented by counsel," was the prisoner's reply.

Justice McMahon declined the plea and ordered the defendant to furnish bail bonds in $1000 to appear on that date.

McGlory went out vehemently: "Your Honor, can I make a charge against this man for keeping a disorderly house?" pointing to Hest.

"Certainly, if you have any evidence," Justice McMahon replied.

"I've occupied a room in his house a dozen times for improper purposes," angrily exclaimed McGlory.

"Bring your evidence here Tuesday, and we'll see about taming a complaint," said Justice McMahon.

The three women, Smith, Wagner and Hudson, were next heard on charges of being disorderly persons. Hudson is a handsome girl who said she is employed in a Grand Street grocery store, and lives at 232 South Fifth street, Brooklyn.

She admitted having visited McGlory's place several times. Wagner said she was a dive-keeper at 217 East Twenty-fourth street, and had been in McGlory's but two or three times. Smith said she was a milliner at 217 East Twenty-fourth street, and that last night was the first time she had been in the place.

Policeman Dooley, of Capt. Clancy's force, testified that he had seen the two first named in McGlory's place frequently. He never saw the other woman before. That saved the alleged milliner and she was discharged. The other women each fined $10, which was paid by one of McGlory's henchmen, and the three women joined each other on the sidewalk, exchanging gleeful congratulations.

Of the men, Giovanni, Davis and Berioth

ESOP ON CURRENT EVENTS. CXXVII.

A Wolf, whose lair was near a sheep pasture, nightly destroyed the young lambs. At first he concealed himself when the shepherds came to hunt him, but finally becoming emboldened he refused to retreat before them, and was caught and put to death.

were discharged, but "One-eyed Connolly" and Michael O'Neill, alias McGlory, were fined $100 each.

"I hardly know what to say about this matter," said McGlory to an EVENING WORLD reporter. "I don't think that I shall be arrested simply because my name is Billy McGlory. I know that my name is Billy McGlory, and I know that there is nothing wrong going on last night. These people were in there, quietly talking and drinking soft stuff."

"Can't a man run a place and sell soft stuff? I've got to make a living. This man Hest wants to run me out of my place and get himself. I know several men who are trying to capture the place. If you don't call this persecution I don't know what it is."

And McGlory looked really pained and acted as if he was an ill-used man.

McGlory sent messengers after bondsman.

TO PLAGE THE BOMB HURLER

Hope of His Identification by "The Evening World's" Picture.

The mystery surrounding the head of the unknown bomb-thrower, which is still kept on exhibition at the Morgue, is as yet unsolved.

Since the ghastly object was placed in the jaw of alcoholist Saturday morning and the public has been allowed to view it for purposes of identification, at least three thousand persons have gazed on its features.

Several persons declared positively that the head was that of the prisoner Southampton, who was believed that the face in the jaw was that of "Proft," a Brooklyn crank, while others thought it resembled certain persons whom they had not recently seen.

None of the alleged identifications was complete enough to satisfy Coroner Messenger or the Morgue.

Now the effects of the alcohol have so swollen the dead features as to hamper any further attempts at identification from its inspection.

The main hope of the authorities is now in the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, which was taken by a photographer in the Morgue. Coroner Messenger has obtained a large number of copies of last Saturday's ENKINS WOMAN containing the picture, and these are shown to every person who calls to inspect the head.

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

Coroner Messenger says: "Endorsing the ENKINS WOMAN's portrait of the head, I think I ought to know because I saw the picture in the Morgue. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me. It is the head of the man that demanded money from me."

CYRUS W. FIELD'S NEST EGGS.

Records Prove that He Still Holds Much Property.

His Half Million Capital Saved at Some One Else's Expense.

Recent developments show that the affairs of the late Cyrus W. Field, as they relate to his condition as was described a few days ago, it was said that when he lay prostrated, after learning of his son's alleged insanity and the extent of the disaster to the younger man's firm, he declared that he was completely ruined, and was as poor as on the day he was born.

Mr. Field is not even reduced to straightened circumstances by his son's misdoings. If the evidence of the County Clerk's office at White Plains is to be depended on, the records there show that Mr. Field holds a mortgage for $400,000 on property in Westchester County, which is controlled by what is known as the Ardley Syndicate. The property comprises 700 acres of land, situated near Ardley Towers, Cyrus Field's country seat, and was for many years owned by him.

A year ago last August he sold this property to the syndicate, which purchased it for the purpose of having the land subdivided into lots. The syndicate paid $100,000 down, and gave the mortgage which Mr. Field still holds for the balance.

The records at White Plains show that the mortgage still stands in Mr. Field's name, and no assignment of it has ever been recorded. This, it is said, is a very unusual thing, and it is not known what the syndicate has done with the property.

It is said that Mr. Field's strong box still contains many other valuable securities, and that there is nothing whatever that he will pass his declining years in poverty.

Mr. Field's son, Cyrus W. Field, Jr., is a Protestant, and his father, Cyrus W. Field, Sr., was a Catholic. They quarreled about religious differences, and that night she slept on a lounge.

He arose yesterday morning, and they renewed their quarrel, when he assaulted her in the manner described and went away, ostensibly to his work.

The woman was beaten by her husband yesterday morning at his home, 124 West One Hundred and Fourth street. She was severely injured in the neck and spine.

Therrell is a prisoner at the one hundredth street police station.

The woman told the police that her husband is a violent temper, and is a Catholic. They quarreled about religious differences, and that night she slept on a lounge.

He arose yesterday morning, and they renewed their quarrel, when he assaulted her in the manner described and went away, ostensibly to his work.

The woman was beaten by her husband yesterday morning at his home, 124 West One Hundred and Fourth street. She was severely injured in the neck and spine.

Therrell is a prisoner at the one hundredth street police station.

The woman told the police that her husband is a violent temper, and is a Catholic. They quarreled about religious differences, and that night she slept on a lounge.

He arose yesterday morning, and they renewed their quarrel, when he assaulted her in the manner described and went away, ostensibly to his work.

The woman was beaten by her husband yesterday morning at his home, 124 West One Hundred and Fourth street. She was severely injured in the neck and spine.

Therrell is a prisoner at the one hundredth street police station.

The woman told the police that her husband is a violent temper, and is a Catholic. They quarreled about religious differences, and that night she slept on a lounge.

He arose yesterday morning, and they renewed their quarrel, when he assaulted her in the manner described and went away, ostensibly to his work.

The woman was beaten by her husband yesterday morning at his home, 124 West One Hundred and Fourth street. She was severely injured in the neck and spine.

Therrell is a prisoner at the one hundredth street police station.

The woman told the police that her husband is a violent temper, and is a Catholic. They quarreled about religious differences, and that night she slept on a lounge.

He arose yesterday morning, and they renewed their quarrel, when he assaulted her in the manner described and went away, ostensibly to his work.

The woman was beaten by her husband yesterday morning at his home, 124 West One Hundred and Fourth street. She was severely injured in the neck and spine.

Therrell is a prisoner at the one hundredth street police station.

The woman told the police that her husband is a violent temper, and is a Catholic. They quarreled about religious differences, and that night she slept on a lounge.

He arose yesterday morning, and they renewed their quarrel, when he assaulted her in the manner described and went away, ostensibly to his work.

The woman was beaten by her husband yesterday morning at his home, 124 West One Hundred and Fourth street. She was severely injured in the neck and spine.

Therrell is a prisoner at the one hundredth street police station.

The woman told the police that her husband is a violent temper, and is a Catholic. They quarreled about religious differences, and that night she slept on a lounge.

He arose yesterday morning, and they renewed their quarrel, when he assaulted her in the manner described and went away, ostensibly to his work.

The woman was beaten by her husband yesterday morning at his home, 124 West One Hundred and Fourth street. She was severely injured in the neck and spine.

Therrell is a prisoner at the one hundredth street police station.

The woman told the police that her husband is a violent temper, and is a Catholic. They quarreled about religious differences, and that night she slept on a lounge.

He arose yesterday morning, and they renewed their quarrel, when he assaulted her in the manner described and went away, ostensibly to his work.

HOME RULE A LABOR ISSUE.

So Says Gladstone in an After Breakfast Speech.

Grand Old Man and Wife Guests of the Liberal Conference.

LONDON. (THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.) The grand old man of the Liberal Federation conference, which opened yesterday in Memorial Hall, Farringdon street, partook of a breakfast this morning, at which the principal guest was Mr. Gladstone. The great Liberal leader was accompanied by his wife, who, in addition to her husband, had in his domestic and political life, has become proverbial.

After the delegates and their guests had partaken of the breakfast Mr. Gladstone addressed them. He said he was rejoiced to see that the deliberations of the conference were attended with such unanimity, and that the decision, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

Mr. Gladstone said he thought the time had come for the commencement of continuous efforts to bring about rural reforms, and he added, these efforts ought not to be terminated until the rural question had been completely solved.

Speaking on the subject of workingmen, Mr. Gladstone said the labor question had a wide range. Home rule was a part of the labor controversy, as the bulk of those who were struggling were struggling for laborers or small farmers. The condition of rural laborers was a matter of great importance.

The great object of the conference was to bring about the abolition of the land question, which he declared, were sure precursors of victory.

London and Liverpool Clothing Co. GREAT COMBINATION SALE. MEN'S AND BOYS' OVERCOATS AND ULSTERS GIVEN AWAY FREE.

THE GREATEST INDUCEMENTS EVER OFFERED. TO-DAY and TO-MORROW we will sell

250 Boys' Suits, 4 to 13 years, at $2.90; Cheap at $4.00.

With every suit we will give Free, Without Charge, A BOY'S OVERCOAT Worth $4.00.

200 Men's All-Wool Suits, at $15.00. With every suit we will give Free, Without Charge, either an OVERCOAT or ULSTER (your choice), worth fully the price we ask for the whole outfit.

Come Early. Store Open Evenings. LONDON AND LIVERPOOL CLOTHING CO., 86 and 88 BOWERY, Corner Hester Street.

CAUGHT IN A BACK DRAUGHT. THEY OBJECT TO UNIFORMS.

Narrow Escape of Five men from an Awful Death.

Supreme Court Officers Hope That Rumor Isn't True.

Two firemen had a narrow escape from being burned to death in a fire at 209 Broome street, at an early hour to-day.

It was 4.15 o'clock when officers Kingler and McLaughlin discovered the outbreak. They had been called to a fire on the street outside, but when they reached the building at the above number.

The building is used as a boarding-house. In the basement is a saloon owned by Alexander Steinhilber, of Staten Island. Jacob Mink and his wife run the place for Steinhilber.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Mink there were about fifteen persons sleeping in the house. All got out without trouble. Two of the boarders went back to get their trunks and the police had to drive them out.

When the firemen got there volumes of black smoke were pouring from the basement. Assistant Foreman Krueger and Fireman Farley, of 11th street, rushed upstairs, and while they were in the hall the street door was closed by a back draft.

Alone immediately the flames burst forth from the basement, and the fire spread rapidly. The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly.

The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly. The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly.

The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly. The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly.

The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly. The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly.

The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly. The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly.

The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly. The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly.

The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly. The firemen were unable to get into the building, and the fire spread rapidly.